5

Atty Ref: 042390.P5725

ABSTRACT

Processor implementation–specific instructions save a processor state in a system memory and attempt to correct the error. Control is then transferred to processor–independent instructions. Control is returned to the processor implementation–specific instructions which then return to an interrupted context of the processor by restoring the processor state.